LPs in the ‘show me’ phase when it comes to first-time funds

In the January year in review issue of VCJ, Chris Douvos, a VIA managing director, was featured in an article about fundraising: “LPs in the ‘show me’ phase when it comes to first-time funds.” He noted that many LPs are faced with a high level of fundraising activity while enjoying moderate levels of distributions. As a result, many LPs are facing allocation pressures and thinking about ways in which they might cull their manager rosters. This dynamic may portend difficulties for funds coming to market during 2016. For a link to the full article, please see www.vcjnews.com.
